Early January 1966 SAS [] became involved in providing COMOR assistance with regard to the applicability of color photography; to photographic satellites. [] This activity was not coordinated with OSP and along with other incidents of a similar nature, led Mr. Crowley to ask of the DD/S&T what the SAS mission and role would be and particularly how that staff would involve itself in the Agency's satellite activities and the NRO.

Mtg. on 28 Feb. with Dr. Wheelon, [] & McMahon in which differences settled. Wheelon desired to have SAS as an independent source to take a critical look at programs in general, but assured OSP that SAS would in no way assume role of a technical IG over OSP's programs. SAS was not to engage in any communications with outside agencies regarding OSP's programs without coordination/prior/with OSP. OSP encouraged to keep in close communication with SAS.
